

Lynda Shelley
Executive Director of Clinical Operations, Novotech Australia

Lynda holds a Bachelor of Science (Biochemistry/Microbiology) and Masters of Public Health (Health Economics) and joined the pharmaceutical industry in 1991 as a CRA with Wellcome Australia.

Lynda went on to hold positions of SCRA and Clinical Project Manager with Serono Australia, managing local clinical trials and health economics projects, before transferring to Serono International in Geneva in 1999 as Clinical Trial Leader on an international phase III study.

In 2002 Lynda joined Serono's clinical management team as Associate Director responsible for a team of project managers and clinical trials assistants across Europe and the US. She has also participated in a clinical process "re-design" project, which took a quantitative and qualitative approach to evaluating departmental performance before and after implementation of newly designed, standardised clinical processes.

In 2005 Lynda returned to Australia and joined Covance as the Head of Project Management for Asia Pacific. In mid-2006 Lynda moved to Novotech Australia and is currently Executive Director of Clinical Operations, with responsibility for Novotech's growing clinical operations and biometrics teams across Australasia and Asia.