Partnership Opportunities

Event overview:

The inaugural Australasian Life Science Investment Summit will attract national and international investors, comprising angel investors, venture capitalists, fund managers, investment bankers and representatives of superannuation funds. It will also attract the venture capital arms of the major pharmaceutical and biotechnology companies from Australia, the Asia Pacific region, North America and Europe.

One of AusBiotech's priorities is to stimulate and support investment in Australia's biotechnology innovation. One of the most effective ways to achieve this is to develop and manage independent investor meetings that ensure access for the Australian industry to global life science investors, a task even more important in these times of economic duress.

The presenting companies will be a mix of listed companies in late-stage development, private companies with identified product/opportunities and early-stage commercialisation companies from research institutes and universities.

- One day – 40 opportunities.
- 20 late-stage public companies.
- 20 of the most promising early-stage private companies.
- AusBiotech's Business Matching Program will give investors, company executives and business development executives the opportunity to schedule private meetings at the summit.
